

Chuan Xu

Chuan Xu grew up in Wuhan, Hubei Province, China. She has an M. A. in theology and a Ph. D. in Chinese philosophical and religious studies. She has been engaged in inter-religious dialogue between Christianity and Confucianism, Daoism and Buddhism, and has delivered speeches on these topics at international conferences. She has also published on feminist gender studies on the Daoist classic Daodejing. Besides philosophy and religion, Chuan has a broad interest in Chinese culture, including literature, poetry, music and art. Currently Chuan is an instructor of Mandarin at Dalhousie University. She strives to integrate Chinese culture into the teaching of Chinese language.

Fanny and Ping Lee

We are from Taiwan. We moved to Halifax in 1997 and have been here ever since. We first got involved with the FCCNS in 2004 (we think, we're not sure anymore). We started out as helpers to the previous crafts teacher, and mother took over when that teacher left later that year. We've been doing the crafts section ever since.

Yongmei Wang
